

Premium payments

How and when do I pay for my health insurance?

The money you pay each month for your health insurance is called a premium payment. Your insurance coverage will not start until you pay your first premium.

How do I pay my premium each month?

Your health insurance company will tell you what types of payment they accept. Usually, you can pay in 1 of 4 ways:

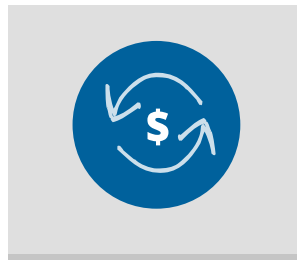

Mail

Mail a check or money order to the insurance company.

Online

Log in to the insurance company's website to pay by debit or credit card.

Automatic payment

Contact your bank to set up a payment that will automatically be paid to the insurance company each month.

Phone

Call your insurance company to pay by debit or credit card.

Use the Premium Payment Reminder on the back to help you remember to pay each month.

My premium payment reminder

Keep this sheet in a place you can see it to remind you to pay every month this year.

When your insurance company tells you the premium amount and when it's due, put it here:

My monthly premium is $ _____. It is due on the _____ day of each month.

Add a checkmark when you pay your premium:

January

February

March

April

May

June

July

August

September

October

November

December

Pay your premium each month, even if you don't use your insurance. If you don't pay, your insurance will be cancelled. If you can't pay it by the monthly due date, contact your insurance company right away to see if you can get an extra day or two to pay.
